Portraits of Leading St. Louis Members of the Legislature.

Portraits and Representatives Who Do the Law-Making From St. Louis—Who They Are and How They Look—Biographical Sketches.

The following portraits of some of the leading members of the St. Louis Delegation in the Upper and Lower House of the present Legislature, will be recognized at once as a gallery of many beauty, as equal to which it would be hard to find. In some cases the Post-Dispatch studio artist has taken the portraits as artfully as possible, despite the most explicit and stringent instructions to the contrary. There may be one or two isolated instances among the pictures, in which, owing to time and the difficulty of getting the full range of all the lines, the smiles, the dimples and the blinks which render the well-known faces of the men of the law so familiar to us, are not quite up to them. If there are such cases, the explanation is that the artist caught the Legislator, when worn out and weary by the incessant toil and labor of law, and he was compelled to do himself justice, and that therefore, nobody can be justly blamed for the slight imperfections.

SENATOR J. C. MCGUIRE. Introduced himself and plans to the general public early in the present session when he offered the bill to investigate the offices of Collector and Comptroller, in a statement to the members of the Senate, that he was fresh to require a review. The Senator is a lawyer practising at the St. Louis bar. He has been the attorney for the Brewers' Association and the largest brewer in the city, his colleague came in this city and State. Senator McGuire is a Republican, and has been of that party for many years. Since his retirement from the army, concerning which an unsuccessful attempt was made during the McClellan trial to reflect on the Major's military conduct, he has returned to the Senate chamber, measuring over six feet in height.

SENATOR J. C. MCGUIRE. occupies the chair contested by Mr. McGraw, who is unwilling to surrender it to his opponent. Senator McGuire was a member of the last Senate, and was sorely surprised last November when he learned that his colleague had been elected. Senator McGuire is an engineer by profession. He made a strong race against McGraw, whom he easily defeated.

SENATOR J. C. MCGUIRE. is filling out the latter half of his legislative term. He is a young man and one of the most active in the Assembly. Mr. O'Brien is now a practising attorney, and a member of the firm of Bass & O'Brien. He is a member of the circuit business in the Fourth Ward. Before his election to the Senate Mr. O'Brien received a Legislative appointment as a member of the Lower Board of the Municipal Assembly. "Jim" O'Brien, as his friends call him, is very popular in the Fourth Ward, and was prominently mentioned as a possible candidate for Congress a year ago.

SENATOR J. C. MCGUIRE. became prominent during the last session of the Assembly, when he had the hardihood to introduce a SENATOR J. C. MCGUIRE. another member from the Second District, carries the title of captain, voted him by the gallant Bain Zouaves, whose undaunted ranks have many a time repelled the enemy in the battle—shame battle—still battle. It is true—but still battle. Mr. Bain is the eldest son of Mr. George Bain, and is a man of great energy and a remarkable resemblance to his father. He follows his father's steps, and is a Silk Stocking. Mr. Bain is a financial agent and a local politician, and a European stockman. His hair is very dark, and his eyes are very blue, and his mink as it appears on first sight, being cut in the latest straight-tude style. His entry into the Legislature is Mr. Bain's political debut.

JUDGE J. B. WALTON, member from the Fourth District, leaves the judiciary to take his place in the legislative halls of the Nation. It is meant to say that the Judge for several years honorably filled the position of Justice of the Peace in the city, and when he took his seat in the Legislature to repair the laws which his judicial experience has so thoroughly lined. He is a man of great energy and a European stockman. Rutherford is an earnest, hard worker, who makes few speeches, but who has never been accused of neglecting the interests of his constituents.

HENRY W. BOND, is a member of the Lower House from the Second Legislative District. Mr. Bond is a young lawyer who stands well at the bar, and who enjoys a few years ago from the South, where he had excellent training in his profession. He is a member of the firm of Bass & O'Brien, and is a member of the firm, of course, declining to what has occurred in this richest woman in America, but in some way the story has leaked out, and yesterday was the talk of Wall Street. It is stated that Assignee May made a formal offer to Mrs. Green of all her securities, held in trust for her by the firm, with the exception of an amount sufficient to make good the outstanding loan the firm made to her husband, the ex-president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. His loan amounted to about $300,000, and this is secured by Louisville and Nashville bonds, which have greatly depreciated in value, so that the firm would be a heavy loss if it should attempt to realize on them to make good the loan. The firm claims that at the time the loan was made, Mrs. Green gave the firm to understand that she would be entitled to a return of her securities, but who has never been accused of neglecting the interests of his constituents.

AN OPIUM SPECULATOR, some time ago, Mrs. Green walked up Wall Street yesterday afternoon, but passed unnoticed. She looked not unlike Mrs. B. Hayes, though the lines in her face are stronger. As she passed along people would stop and look at her, and when she was recognized, would say to others who did not:

"Do you know who that is?"

"No."

"Hattie Green, worth $30,000,000."

"Ahh!"

This is probably the only kind of admiration she inspired. The controversy over the loan to Mrs. Green, and the return of the securities, is thought, may lead to litigation.

A TALE OF THE PINERIES.

An Old Indian Fighter's Desperate Battle With Wolves

KANKAKEE, Ill., January 23.—A. H. Butt, Secretary of the Chicago Lumber Company has just returned from the logging camp, near the town of Escanaba, Michigan, a point in the pines, forty miles north of Escanaba. He says the night before he left the camp the mercury had dropped to 45° below zero. This was the coldest of four days of very extreme weather. At about eight o'clock, old Tom Dugan, a hunter, named Tom Dugan, returning from hunting, was killed and eaten by wolves within two miles of the camp. The wolves there are more numerous and bold than usual on account of the scarcity of game. He had gone to sleep for his next morning, found his closely gnawed bones. Three dead wolves were lying near him, pierced by his rifle balls, and his Winchester rifle by his side, with one chamber still loaded.

Four Men Have a Fight in Virginia—One of Them Murdered.

LYNCHBURG, Va., January 23.—Near Bond's Mill, Wise County, on Monday last, Elias Collier, T. B. Felt, J. Collier, Wm. Gibson, and several others became engaged in a general fight, the parties taking sides. In the melee Elias Collier emptied his revolver into the body of Felt, killing him. The murderer fled to Kentucky and is still at large.

bill to repeal the Johnson gambling law, an effort that met with a disastrous defeat. Since the opening of the present session Senator Hathaway has made no partisan speech such as an opposition to the improvement of the capitol, etc. The subject of this sketch never did lay serious pretensions to the title of Senator. Senator Hathaway is a St. Louisian to the manner born, and is very popular with the country members. He has been acting as salesman for a leading clothing house, in the interests of which he is allowed him by his legislative duties.

CHAPMAN CHOKE OFF.

Execution of the Murderer of Nicholas Hubbard at Charlestown, Illinois.

Dismal Scenes on the Gallows — The Doomed Man Has Nothing to Say — Not Even a Prayer Uttered — A brief but Terrible Death Struggle — Sketch of Chapman and History of His Crime.

T. J. Chapman.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.
CHARLESTON, Ill., January 23.—Thomas J. Chapman, the murderer of Nicholas Hubbard in Hinsdale Township, Coles County, August 17, 1884, was hanged at Charlestown at 8 o'clock to-day. Having previously confessed the crime, he had nothing to say upon the scaffold, not even a prayer being offered. William McDevitt stood on the left side of the doomed man, and quickly pinched his eye above the knee and about the ankles. Sheriff Hollis of Edwardsville, gave instructions and the ministers looked on. It was but the work of a second. On the right stood Deputy John Hamilton, who, when he made it not be a bad day in the city among the men who responded quite following to the FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1885.

ECONOMY is the road to wealth; if you doubt it read the list of the five-dollar subscribers to the sanitary defense fund.

At least this is good sleighing weather. Sleighing is expensive, however. We are credibly informed that it costs two dollars to sit on a carboune and see a fourteen karat, full jeweled sleigh go by.

A CHARITY bull-fight is to be held in Madrid for the benefit of the earthquake sufferers. How sweet a thing is tender-hearted pity, and how cheerfully the bulls will present stomachs open as the day for melting charity.

The Chicago Grand Jury has indicted two hundred and fifty election judges, who, by a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together, turned a majority of 14,000 votes into a majority of 300 the other way. Chicago is a great city, and there is a frankness and thoroughness about her dishonesty of which she should be very proud. There are few places in the country where seventy-five per cent of the judges of election could get Grand Jury diplomas for work.

JUDGE WALTON, who represents a St. Louis constituency, will, it is said, introduce a bill in the Missouri Legislature suppressing the playing of base-ball in St. Louis on Sundays. It is to be feared that the plausibility of the bill will be twitting in the sere October, while the mass and lichen will fill the lines of the touching epithet, " Didn't know it was loaded," chiseled on his tomb.

THE proposition to increase the police force fifty men is one about which there can be very little difference of opinion. It is a standing source of surprise that the work of policing the city is so well done with the feeble force at command. When we learn that there are districts in the city where the average beat is eighty-five squares—about five miles—and that there are 220 policemen on duty at one time in a city of 415,000 inhabitants, it seems to us that the Municipal Assembly would show more wisdom in less economy.

THE enforcement of the Iowa Prohibition law has been so conspicuous a failure in three-fourths of the counties of the State, and so many of its leading supporters have reluctantly pronounced it a blunder so far as temperature and tax-payers are concerned, that a State Prohibition convention has just been held in Des Moines to resolve in favor of standing by the law, and to stiffen up the back-bones of the weak brethren. But with a split among the Prohibitionists themselves, the breach between the Republican party is bound to grow, and the law will have to go, or become in every part of the State the dead letter it already is in most of the counties.

NEITHER the London Times nor the Standard have yet received any information from their special correspondents who were present at the battle of Abu Klea, and both of those journals believe that the army press censorship is withholding their news because it is unfavorable to Gen. STEWART. The delay is remarkable and may very easily mean that Lord WOLSELEY's dispatch is but the sugar-coating of a very bitter pill of disaster. It is this construction that the English press puts upon the absence of news from the Sudan, and it is quite possible that a few more days will show the world that the Mahdi has not been crushed, that the road to Khartoum has not been opened, and that Gordon will not be the only Englishman who will have to be rescued or ransomed out of the hands of the Arabs.THE Knights of HASSAN BEN is the last name under which the Proteus of Dynamic Conspiracy has come to the surface. In another column will be found a startling history of the organization which borrows its ceremonial and its name from the first organized murder conspiracy which was formed by the Stewarts of JABEL, or "Old Man of the Mountain," HASSAN BEN SARAH. It was from the "hashishim" or hashashin drunken followers of this personage that the name "assassin" comes. At any rate this last sibyl of murder has the merit of appropriateness and strict historical accuracy. The New York World has in its office original documents which authenticate this exposure.

and the article, taken as a whole, makes one of the most extraordinary contributions yet added to the romance of crime.

NEW YORK ARTISTS.

A Few of the Men Whose Genius Shows on the Canvas.

In the Studio, On the Plains or Among the Hills and Valleys They Delight in Reproducing Nature for Glory and Wealth.

The Post-Dispatch to-day presents a gallery of artist's portraits. They are all men of prominence in New York art circles, and their reputation is even more widespread.

an eventful career. He was born in Massachusetts, Mass. He began life as a journalist, and in 1870-71 was on the editorial staff of the Boston Advertiser. He then went to Europe, and spent two years in Antwerp, and from thence to Vienna, where, in 1873, he was one of the Jury of Award at the Universal Exposition. After two more months spent in Vienna, he returned home for a brief visit. In May, 1877, he went to Paris, and thence, at the outbreak of the Russo-Turkish war, to Odessa, in Russia. He then went to the Crimea, and to the Black Sea, and, having been appointed war correspondent of the London Daily News, went with Gourko, accompanying Moltke on the former's staff. Moltke came to New York, and was received with his wife about five years ago, and although he has a home and studio in London, seems to prefer the quiet of the country. He is a tall, slender, very handsome. His conversation, like his writing, is vigorous and decisive. His artistic forte lies in costuming and drapery, as well as in painting, and he has a decided taste for the dramatic. His pictures are generally classical in subject. He has command of a decided color scheme and his figure drawing is remarkably fine.
